Shirley Jones

Shirley Jones was born in Smithton, Pennsylvania where she grew up. Her singing career evolved out of high school stage appearances which prompted her parents to supplement these with professional voice lessons 30 miles away in Pittsburgh. At the age of 17, she went to New York City where she tried for and received a role in South Pacific. Not long after, she auditioned for and won the coveted 'Laurey' role in the movie version of Oklahoma, which was her first major production. Offers for subsequent films after that led her into such popular films as The Courtship of Eddie's Father, playing opposite Glenn Ford, Happy Ending with Lloyd Bridges, April Love with Pat Boone and her motion picture classic Carousel. In 1962, Hollywood prepared to make a film of The Music Man, the Broadway success which had been playing 4½ years. The starring role, 'Marion', which Shirley played is to date, one of her proudest accomplishments.

Not to be type-cast with the girl-next-door image, Shirley Jones went on to play the controversial role of a prostitute and the significant effect she had on the ambitious Evangelist whom she meets. This change in characterization proved to be a smart decision because it won her the 1961 Academy Award for her portrayal of 'Lulu Baines' in Elmer Gantry. Thereafter she played Shirley Partridge, America's foremost mom, for five years in The Partridge Family. Shirley's extensive acting career has her with such well-known personalities as Ed Sullivan, Steve Allen, Bob Hope, Carol Burnett, Dean Martin, Andy Williams, Perry Como, Danny Thomas, Danny Kaye, Johnny Carson, Mike Douglas and Dina Shore. Twice she headlined the MGM in Las Vegas and has been host to the Moscow Circus for two CBS specials. Shirley's commitment to theatre remains strong, and as a policy she reserves summers for touring. Her successes include Rodgers and Hammerstein's Sound of Music, Jerome Kern's Show Boat, Lerner and Leow's On a Clear Day, Maggie Flynn, and a national tour of Wait Until Dark. The elegance of Miss Jones' style graces the stage upon which she performs. The Zeiterion theatre is honored to celebrate its Gala Opening with such a distinguished performer.

MUSINGS

A Muse, in Greek Mythology, was a spirit or power who inspired artists to create joy and beauty. I believe our muses, the "ladies" of the Zeiterion, have returned to life to watch over the Theatre with mystical love and care.

Tonight is another beginning for the theatre, and we are honored to have you here, along with Shirley Jones, to celebrate the opening of this exciting new performing arts center.

The assistance and guidance of WHALE and Ted Stevens assure that the theatre will have a long and prosperous life. Fundraising efforts continue so that future renovations will give you the best theatre facility in this part of the country.

The Penler Brothers and their staff, Merrill Lynch, and all of our incredible volunteers have provided the theatre with a very strong beginning. We look forward to continued growth and success with their help.

Future months will bring many more exciting music, theatre, dance and film events your way. Please join us in welcoming all the performing arts to New Bedford. The Zeiterion now belongs to all of us, and we must keep it alive and thriving.

Take a look around. I'm sure the muses are smiling!

Dan Kirsch

DAN KIRSCH, Managing Director. Originally from Wisconsin, Dan studied at the District One Technical Institute in Eau Claire, receiving an Associate Degree in Restaurant and Hotel Cookery. While attending the school, he founded and directed the 'Tech Players', a community theatre group.

From Wisconsin, Dan apprenticed at the North Shore Music-Theatre in Beverly, MA, and then moved to New York City for almost six years. The summer of 1979 took him to Theatre-by-the-Sea in Matunuck, Rhode Island as Assistant General Manager. Summer stock 1981 found him at the Westport Country Playhouse in Westport, Connecticut as Prop Master.

Dan has stage managed five productions: three original historical musicals for the Performing Arts Repertory Theatre (P.A.R.T.) in New York, the 20th Anniversary Datsun Industrial Show in Honolulu, and assisted with the National Tour of To Grandmother's House We Go starring Eva LeGallienne.

TED STEVENS, Project Coordinator. Prior to accepting his current position as Executive Director of the Ocean State Performing Arts Center, Ted was the General Manager of the Atlanta Fox Theatre. Ted has also worked as business manager of the Atlanta Municipal Theatre, and has managed the Peachtree Playhouse, the Theatre of the Stars at the Atlanta Civic Center, and the Atlanta Memorial Arts Center.

Mr. Stevens holds memberships in the International Society of Performing Arts Administrators, the International Association of Auditorium Managers, and received the 1976 Creative Loafing "Helicon Award" and the WSB Radio "Eager Beaver" Award.

BOB FOREMAN, Director of Restoration. A native of Atlanta, Bob comes to New Bedford from New York City where he is the Assistant Production Manager at the Brooklyn Academy of Music (BAM).

Bob met Ted Stevens at Atlanta Fox, and when Ted was appointed Executive Director of the OSPAC, Bob became Director of Restoration for the 3200-seat movie palace and continued on as Director of Operations. Bob has stage managed at Theatre-by-the-Sea in Matunuck, Rhode Island, and has also been consultant to the Garde Theatre in New London, Connecticut; the New York City Center; Theatre in the Park — the former World's Fair New York State building; and to the Virginia Center for the Performing Arts in Richmond, a six-million dollar renovation of Loew's 2100-seat movie palace.

Bob will continue to serve as planner for the Zeiterion's second and third phases.

The Zeitz Family

by Peggi Medeiros

The Zeiterion Theatre was built by and named for the Zeitz family. Four Zeitz brothers, Barney, Harry, Morton and Fisher, the children of Jewish immigrants, Kopel and Fanny Zeitz, built a proud theatrical empire which at its height in the nineteen fifties included the State (Zeiterion), Empire, New Bedford, Olympia, and Capital theaters in New Bedford and theaters in Fall River, Newport, Rhode Island, and Portland, Maine. Additionally the family owned the historic Tabitha Inn built for Fairhaven by Henry Huttleston Rogers, and several downtown New Bedford office buildings.

Arriving in New Bedford nearly penniless at the turn of the century, Kopel Zeitz began a bottled water company selling door to door and employing his sons. Growing more prosperous, son Barney opened the Winchester hardware store famous for the motto, "largest and best for the least." The Zeitz family fortune was assured with the Mercantile Wrecking Company which salvaged everything from a $25,000 steam yacht to bankrupt local companies.

In 1922 Barney Zeitz decided to build a theater, a first class theater. As he explained just before the Zeiterion opened in April 1923, "For many years the theater-going people of this city, myself included, have been crying for what, for want of a better name, I'll call good shows. I feel it is beyond argument that we have had very few as yet. I wanted to see them here, and I knew there were enough others who wanted to also make the bringing of them here worthwhile."

Barney's dream for good live theater in New Bedford did not last the summer of 1923. Instead the Zeitz family spent most of the next fifty-nine years showing great, first run films and making the Zeitz name synonymous with entertainment in New Bedford. Tonight the Zeiterion opens again still dedicated to Barney and Harry Zeitz's dream that "There are enough people who appreciate the highest standard of theatrical entertainment obtainable to support the Zeiterion, a first class playhouse."

Robert Goulet

Robert Goulet was born in Lawrence, Massachusetts, moving with his family to Edmonton, Canada at age 13. In Canada, Mr. Goulet began his career on school stages and in talent shows with much encouragement from his family.

In high school, Mr. Goulet won a scholarship to the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto and began his professional career doing bit parts on television and on stage. After graduation from RCOM, Mr. Goulet moved to New York and for the next two years went back and forth between Toronto and New York until he auditioned for the new Lerner-Loewe Broadway musical, Camelot. The show was immediately a hit and Mr. Goulet was an overnight success.

Offers and contracts followed Mr. Goulet's debut as Sir Lancelot and he was offered his first movie role — albeit a limited one — as the voice of Jean-Tom in UPA's animated feature film, Gay Purree, co-starring the voice of Judy Garland. Mr. Goulet then made his dramatic television debut on the Kraft Suspense Theatre production, Operation Grief. It was instrumental in earning him the starring role in his own ABC-TV series, Blue Light. Mr. Goulet then returned to Broadway and starred in his Tony-winning role in Happy Time. He followed that with the starring roles in three ABC-TV special presentations of great musicals: in Rodgers and Hammerstein's Carousel, Cole Porter's Kiss Me Kate and in the Lerner-Loewe classic, Brigadoon, which won five Emmy Awards.

Presently, Mr. Goulet is a regular headliner at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas. Aside from his work in theater and nightclubs, he continues to guest star in movis for television and on television series.

In January Mr. Goulet opened the Empire Ballroom at the Grand Hyatt Hotel in New York City. The New York Post headline read, "Robert Goulet melts the hearts of his audience."

The Zeiterion is honored to celebrate its 60th Anniversary with such a distinguished performer.

THE ALL-TAP REVUE

The All-Tap Revue from Providence, Rhode Island, began when its director, Brian Jones, then a student at the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD), found himself surrounded by tap lovers. A self-taught dancer, Mr. Jones had been tapping since high school. In 1972, the All-Tap Revue (for lack of a better name) was born at a recital at RISD. The recitals began occurring annually, attracting an enthusiastic following and soon the word got out. Now, the 8-member dance troupe has grown to the status of a locally recognized professional dance company and is tapping its way through New England.

Tonight, we celebrate the 60th anniversary of the opening of the Zeiterion Theatre...a theatre steeped in New Bedford's history.

Over the years, people of all cultures, of all races, and of all colors have gathered here for events of every type. They have seen great actors, classic movies, and lively entertainment.

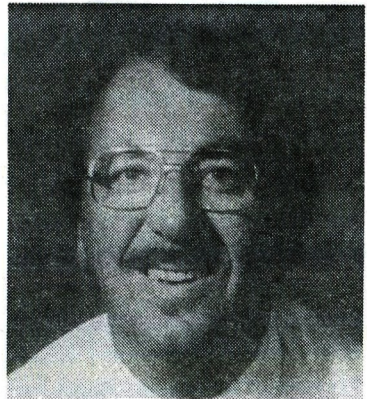

The Zeiterion Theatre has been...and will continue to be...a vital part of our city.

It is a living testament to our greatness.

Very truly,

Musings...

Tonight I ask you to pause for a moment to reflect on New Bedford's theatrical past — then revel in the knowledge that the Zeiterion is once again alive!

In researching the Zeiterion's fascinating history, I have learned of the perserverance and thoughtfulness of New Bedford's people. I am proud to continue the rich theatrical history that this city has.

Six short months ago we had a grand re-opening; next week we close for a short period to substantially improve the physical spaces of the theatre, during which time we will reflect on all that you have taught us so that we may continue grow and improve.

Next season you will see two fine New Bedford organizations using the Zeiterion: The Greater New Bedford Concert Series and Quarters for Christmas. We will welcome them, and you, with open arms. Join us.

BUDDY MORROW

Recognized as one of the all-time great trombone players whose great musicianship has been evident through the years, Buddy first came to the public eye when he was featured with leading orchestras such as Tommy Dorsey, Paul Whiteman, Artie Shaw, and

Jimmy Dorsey and as staff musician with many major radio and television shows. Buddy Morrow began his personal musical touring as a teenager and eventually won a major scholarship at Julliard School of Music because of his brilliant improvisations.

Forming an orchestra of his own, Buddy began experimenting with style and instrumentation and took a band on the road. His memorable hits: "Night Train", "One Mint Julep", "I Don't Know" and "Hey, Mrs. Jones" set Buddy Morrow before the public as a major musical talent. His television work has included CBS as a staff musician, conductor for the Jimmy Rogers television show and he was on staff at NBC for years as featured player on their "Tonight" show. He was later featured artist on the Arthur Godfrey Radio Show.

Buddy Morrow is one of those rare BIG BAND LEADERS of today; a man whose skill on his horn is both an inspiration to his band and a thrill to audiences wherever he appears.

THE TOMMY DORSEY LEGEND

In retrospect, and in Big Band history, Tommy Dorsey's must be recognized as one of the greatest all-around dance bands of them all.

It could swing with the best of them, and no other band could come close to Tommy's when it came to playing ballads. Tommy Dorsey, "The Sentimental Gentleman of Swing," was a master at creating moods—warm, sentimental and forever musical moods—at superb dancing and listening tempos.

Such international hits as "For Sentimental Reasons," "Dedicated to You," "If It's the Last Thing I Do," "Little White Lies," "You Taught Me To Love Again," "Once In A While," "Marie," and "Song of India," are standards of popular American music. Singers like Jack Leonard, Frank Sinatra, Jo Stafford, and The Pied Pipers, were showcased as they projected the Dorsey moods wonderfully.

At the end of the official Big Band era, Tommy Dorsey, more than any other of the big names, fought the cause of the Big Bands with words and action. Less than two years after the 1946 Big Band downfall Tommy Dorsey was fronting a formidable new group. "It's about time somebody started things going again," Tommy said at the time. "You can't expect to have any real interest in dance bands if the bands don't go around the country and play for the kids." And so it continues, THE TOMMY DORSEY ORCHESTRA, conducted by BUDDY MORROW, is travelling throughout the country playing for the kids (of all ages).

COMING

Folksinger Tom Rush to Perform at Zeiterion Theatre

Folksinger Tom Rush will hold a very special concert with his band on Saturday, August 13 at 8:30 p.m.

Tom Rush has drawn upon black, urban and other contemporary styles including rhythm 'n' blues and out-right rock and roll in his music.

Now semi-retired to a farm in New Hampshire, he records new material in the 16-track studio he built. This past New Year's eve he held a sold-out concert at Boston Symphony Hall. The Boston Globe called that performance "A magical, precious night." In the past, the New York Times has stated "The group surrounded even the most traditionally based songs with fresh colors and textures without compromising the integrity of the idiom, . . . Mr. Rush unveiled some new songs, and they were an impressive example of how a folk-based performer can come to terms with contemporary pop trends without abandoning his roots or ignoring his strong points."
